

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Mrs. Maude Tomlinson, dress-making, over the Review office.

If you don't read THE TRIBUNE you fail to read the best local paper in Bates county.

Grant VanBenthuisen has returned from his new claim down in the Kiowa country and will get ready as soon as possible to make it secure.

Mothers write us that they have solved the problem of keeping their children well. Give them Rocky Mountain Tea each week. A blessing to mother and child. Ask your druggist.

If you want the best of fire and cyclone insurance, in the most reliable companies, don't fail to call on Geo. P. Huckleby at THE TRIBUNE office.

Now is the time to settle up arrears, and renew your subscription. We need the money and you need the paper. So come in and help us out.

Coll. F. E. Kellogg was in the city Saturday and Sunday, looking after business matters Saturday and his Sunday School Sunday. He has just returned from a visit to his old home in Ohio and the G. A. R. encampment at Cleveland where he had been enjoying a short outing.

Friends of THE TRIBUNE can help the paper greatly by trading with those business men who advertise in its columns. These tradesmen are reliable and from them you can get the best bargains in the market.

Last week I went about, Full of trouble and of doubt. Now I'm smiling and dance with delight.

I had some Rocky Mountain Tea last night. Ask your druggist.

R. A. Jurd & Co., have two rooms in the brick building on Walnut street, where they will show you anything from a brand new household outfit to the minutest stove repairs, in good style. Furniture in all grades and at all prices.

Some thieves were operating in the city Saturday night. They stole some tools from the shops of Wagner & Wiek and Jas. Cook, on Maple street, and entered the home of John Schmidt, corner 5th and Pine streets, where they got five or six dollars in money and a pair of suspenders. Evidently they were of the one "gallus" gentry.

A Most Lamentable Comedy is the title of a powerful novelette by Mr. William Allen White, which begins in the September 21 issue of The Saturday Evening Post, of Philadelphia. This absorbing serial is a study of political hysterics—the story of a state gone mad. The scene of the novelette is a western state laboring under the burdens of a panic year. The central figure is a grocery store demagogue, whose bareheaded oratory captures the state convention. The story rises to a height of dramatic power and intensity rarely equalled in the fiction of the day.

Many new sensations and effects are attempted in this production, including a novel railroad scene showing the robbery of an express car attached to a train traveling at full speed. Mr. McGlynn, the star of the company is a finished and accomplished actor and has the advantage of a very strong supporting company. He is a nephew of the celebrated Rev. Dr. Edward McGlynn who followed his career on the stage with a keen interest. "In A Woman's Power" will be the attraction at the opera house, Friday night, Sept. 20. The sale of seats will commence on Thursday at the Opera Drug Store.

Money to Loan

For from one to three years, on good farm property.

H. P. ROBINSON.

R. A. Jurd & Co., in the Walnut Street brick, will sell you good beds for 50c up, and everything else in proportion. He wants to sell all he has and will make prices accordingly.

Mr. J. J. Coulter of Hume, died last Saturday morning, after a long illness.

Judging by the big bill boards being erected a big show must be coming to town, or somewhere in this neighborhood.

Col. J. S. Rogers, a former well known citizen of the Fairview neighborhood, is reported to have died in Kentucky recently.

Mr. Pye Harkins is reported in poor health and has gone south with the hope that a change of climate and surroundings may help him. All his old friends here hope he will find what he is seeking, and that the old familiar laugh and cheerful look may greet them again on his return.

Capt. John A. Payne, one of the pioneer citizens of Rich Hill, departed last Thursday to take up his residence in Kansas City. During his residence among us he has been one of our most enterprising citizens, always active in any movement to advance the business interests of the city. We always regret to lose such persons from our midst, but life's changes must be met and Capt. Payne's interests have drifted Kansas Cityward, and we wish him good luck and great success in his new home.

Quite a number of citizens met at the store of Beasley & Co., Tuesday evening, to take steps for a proper memorial service on this, Thursday, afternoon, at 2 o'clock p. m., the time of the funeral of President McKinley. Mayor W. W. Ferguson presided, and the following committees were appointed, to-wit: On decoration, Rev. W. B. Chancellor, J. R. Hales, S. B. Cole, G. S. Ham-mack, and Prof. Moody. On program, Prof. S. M. Barrett, A. B. Holloway, J. T. Weathers and W. G. Beasley.

Rev. W. T. Pyles conducted memorial services in the Walnut Street M. E. Church Sunday morning. The pastor read President Roosevelt's proclamation and a biographical sketch of the life of the departed president. H. S. Stryker, Geo. P. Huckleby and Rev. Wesley Lattin delivered short addresses, each portraying some striking characteristic of the late president's life as a Christian and ruler. The choir rendered special music for the occasion, and especially Mr. McKinley's favorites, "Lead Kindly Light" and "Nearer My God, To Thee."

Bands of socialists who held meetings in Detroit, Michigan, and Patterson, New Jersey, rejoiced when they heard of the shooting of the president. One of the talkative members of the group at Patterson said, in speaking of the man who shot the president: "we don't know him, but he is one of us. He did what it was his duty to do, and we honor him, while personally thinking his effort might better have been employed across the ocean on some crowned head." A leader says: "Shooting will have a good effect."—Ex.

OUR DEAD HERO.

William McKinley, the 25th President of the United States, was born at Niles, in Trumbull county, Ohio, January 29, 1843, and received his education in the public schools of his native town, Union Seminary at Poland, Ohio, and in Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa. He joined the Methodist Episcopal Church at the age of sixteen and remained a faithful active member until his death. He enlisted as a private in the 23d Regiment, Ohio Infantry, June 17, 1861. He received his first promotion as Commissary Sergeant April 15, 1862, was promoted to Second Lieutenant Sept. 24, 1862, was made First Lieutenant Febr. 7, 1863, was raised to the rank of Captain July 25, 1864, at the age of 21 years, and was breveted Major of the U. S. Volunteers, March 14, 1865, by President Lincoln for gallant service, and was mustered out of the service July 26, 1865, by reason of the close of the war.

He returned to Poland and began the study of law. Was admitted to the bar at Warren, Ohio, in March, 1867, and removed to Canton where he began the practice of his chosen profession, and has ever since resided.

He married Miss Ida Saxton, Jan'y 25, 1871. Two children were born to them, both dying in infancy.

In 1876 he was elected a representative in congress from the district so long represented by Ben F. Wade and other eminent men, and served the people in this capacity 14 years. In 1891 he was elected governor of his native state and was re-elected in 1893 by an increased majority.

On June 18, 1896, he was nominated for President in the city of St. Louis, Mo., and at the election following, was chosen President of the United States by a plurality of over 600,000, and in 1900 was again nominated and re-elected by a largely increased plurality. He was re-inaugurated President on March 4th last, and died in Buffalo, New York, Saturday morning, September 14, 1901, from the effects of gunshot wounds made by an anarchist September 6th, 1901, while the President was attending the Pan-American Exposition now being held in that city.

As a citizen, as a Christian, as a soldier, as a lawyer, as an officer, and as a ruler he always did his duty and did it well. What more can be said. May his fame and name endure forever as a priceless heritage and incentive to the youth of America.

W. A. Snider.

We take the following item concerning Mr. W. A. Snider, from the Westfield, Ill., Review, of Sept. 5th. Mr. Snider was a brother of our fellow townsman, J. W. Snider.

The funeral of W. A. Snider was held Sunday at the residence and was attended by one of the largest concourses of people ever gathered here upon a similar occasion.

The deceased was born near this city, April 17, 1840, and was the second son of David and Sofia Snider. When the civil war broke out he became a member of General Grant's regiment, the 21st Illinois. He entered upon his business career in 1865, in this city, and remained in the active pursuits for thirty-six continuous and successive years. He was city postmaster from Grant's to McKinley's administrations exclusive of Cleveland's term, a period of twenty years.

He was widely known and intimately associated with a large body of the people, by whom he was held in high esteem.

Faithfulness, honesty and charity were by the deceased held to be sterling virtues, and as such were most prominent in his character and life. The true principal of religion as shown and sought for in the every day life of the deceased was "man's humanity to man." With his demise Westfield loses a noble man and a firm friend.

Thirty old soldiers were present at the funeral services. Revs. J. E. Strevey, J. A. Hawkins and W. C. Smith made brief addresses. The funeral hymns were sung by a quartette composed of Misses Bessie Garver and Joannita Eagon and Messrs. Ed Snyder and Park Irwin. The remains were interred in the Maple Hill cemetery. Beautiful floral creations were presented by the friends, and the business men paid their respects by a floral wheel. The deceased leaves a wife and daughter, two sisters and three brothers and numerous friends to mourn his death.

GRAND OPENING.

We will hold our sixth semi-annual opening on Oct. 1st. We shall spare no pains to make this an enjoyable time for those who may call on us. All are invited to call and see our beautiful fall millinery. As the hard times have not yet struck us, we have bought a large and complete stock, and as heretofore will be prepared to show you the very newest things in style, both in American and imported goods.

We have added largely to our dry goods. We now have in stock a fine line of outing flannelette, Omar Cashmere, Dearborn cloth, gingham, prints, muslin, etc.

We have also added to our china department, which is more complete than heretofore.

We are pleased to announce that Miss Ida Crabb will take charge of our trimming room this season.

She is too well and favorably known to render comment necessary. She joins with Mrs. Ames in inviting her large circle of lady friends to call and see her at The Bazaar.

Remember it is never trouble to show goods.
